Personal Profile

I am a keen, enthusiastic, trustworthy person who is capable of working effectively in both group and individual projects. Driven by the potential to learn and develop in the design industry, I believe in taking a calculated and methodical approach when tackling frustrations to achieve the optimum results. My work ethic was described by lecturers as pragmatic, though capable of balancing this by using theoretics during innovative means.

About Me

My main interest outside of design is rugby. I have been playing rugby union since the age of 11, at School, College, University and club level, playing for Aldwinians RUFC from the age of 13, as well as making an appearance for Huddersfield Laund Hill (formerly YMCA) RUFC. During my time at University, I took on the committee roles of Social Secretary and Vice-captain for the University rugby union team. Alongside this, I became the Active Hud (formerly TeamHud) sports activator for touch rugby, which required me to co-ordinate and run a weekly session of touch rugby. Other than rugby, I have an interest in reading as it is a great opportunity to extend my vocabulary and general knowledge, as well as a way of relaxing. Also, I enjoy cycling either with my family or with my friend group, as it is a great way to exercise and enjoy leisure time.
